PROSPERITY NEEDS BUILDING ACTIVITY

of Unemployed.

"While general business conditions of the country seem to be improving and the public gate of mind is becoming more stabilized and optimistic, the greatest exessonatial need is a restoration of building activities," says S. W. Straus of S. W. Straus & Co.

"Business in general will not be at its best until these activities develop, because in this way a large percentage of the present unemployment will be absorbed. Almost every branch of business is susceptible to the influences of building conditions, and active operations in that industry would have a most exhiliariting effect. Uncertainty as to price conditions still everts a restrictive effect, although the preponderance of building cost tendencies. Costs may be marked down here and there as the result of some local or unusual condition, but the general trend is toward sustained prices.

"There are some slight recessions at this time de to inactivity in the industry, depressed times and unemployment, but when extensive building starts up again prices are likely to strengthen. Hence it seems within the bounds of good judgment that nothing tannible is to be gained by delaying building projects at this time.

COOK, First class, expert in every expending the preponder of mind by day of which cook, which seems the preponder of mind is becoming the color of the preparation of the proposed times and unemployment, but the general will be a stored to the influences of the proposed times and unemployment, but they connected the proposed times and unemployment, but when extensive building starts up again prices are likely to strengthen. COOK, First class, expert in every dead of the present of the present time to the day; the day of the gain from the present resonation of the present ment that nothing tangible is to be gained by delaying building projects at this time.

"Some efforts have been made to stimulate new building operations by artificial means, but these have had little or no appreciable effect up to this time. The law of supply and demand is the basis of all economic development, and while it may cease to function for a brief period it is always the deciding factor in the final analysis. With a nation so seriously underbilt as is now the case period it is always the deciding factor in the final analysis. With a nation so seriously underbilt as is now the case with the United States a movement which will restore normal conditions cannot be long deferred."

MONTCLAIR PREPARES TO ADOPT ZONING LAW

The Board of Commissioners in Mont-The Board of Commissioners in Mont-clair, N. J., will decide this week whether the town is to have the bene-fits of a zoning system. The particular plan or ordinance under consideration was prepared by Herbert Swan of Glen industrial and heavy industrial.

The villa zone protects the country house on lots 100 or more feet in width; the suburban zone the one family house on a lot at least 50 feet wide; the two family detached zone the one family house on a 40 foot lot and the two family house on a 50 foot lot; the two family semi-detached zone the two family house on a 25 foot lot.

Apartments, it is pointed out by Mr. Swan in a summary of the ordinance, are allowed in every zone, but in the first four residential zones the restrictions are so severe as to make construction prohibitive.
